ADMIRAL EVANS SPEAKS AT OGDEN

Famous Sea Fighter Tells of His Affection for Utah to Great Audience.

Guarded with jealous care by those who composed the party, Admiral Robley D. Evans spent more than an hour in Ogden yesterday morning and during that time shook hands with several hundred persons who crowded into his private car attached to Fast Mail train No. 10, during the few minutes in which visitors were admitted. After the gates were closed to all persons wishing to shake the retiring admiral's hand, he hobbled out on the rear platform, supported by his crutches, and expressed his appreciation of the reception tendered him.

There were but few at the Union depot when the train bearing the admiral's party pulled in, promptly on time, at 7:30 o'clock. The few who were there surrounded the car to catch a glimpse of "Fighting Bob," who occupied a seat near one of the windows. He was warmly greeted by the first to see him, "God bless you," the settler said, addressing Admiral Evans through the open door of the car. "May your life be spared for another half-century," Admiral Evans smiled and bowed to the enthusiastic admirer, and when the train pulled out from the station on its way to Washington the admiral's last words were: "God bless Utah."

A short time before the arrival of the gubernatorial party from Salt Lake there appeared in the crowd a young man garbed in the plain clothes of a workman. For a few moments he gazed through the car door at the admiral; then the tears came to his eyes, and he said: "That's the friend of the enlisted man, whether inland or at sea. He's strict on discipline, but he's a real father to officers, and you won't find one real American sailor in the world that won't join me in saying: 'God bless Admiral Evans!'"

Then the young man worked himself nearer the car and announced himself to Lieutenant Evans, the admiral's son, who was on the rear platform. Frenzied admirers had before attempted in vain to gain entrance to the admiral's presence, but this was the exception.

Love for the enlisted men was one, and only one, of the strong characteristics with Admiral Evans. On the memorable trip of the battleship Oregon. This young man, Charles Love, was only a member of the ranks and without any special question, into the presence of "Fighting Bob," and greeted more cordially than any high dignitary. For several minutes he chatted with the sailor.

Headed by Mayor Brewer, the presidents of the three clubs of the city and their delegations, a committee representing the Spanish War veterans, the G. A. R. veterans, Daughters of the Revolution, and other societies, the welcoming crowd from Ogden soon grew into thousands. Then the train carrying the Salt Lake delegation arrived and helped swell the number that surged about the private car in which the admiral was lodged. As soon as the admiral opened the door, and following the gubernatorial party, there was a steady stream of persons through the car. For each the admiral had a smile.

The admiral's face showed plainly the traces of the pain he had suffered. It was pained and drawn. When the reception had ended and he arose and, with the aid of crutches, hobbled to the rear platform to speak at the station, every assembly, sympathy was written on every face toward the car. In a clear voice he said:

"I want to take this opportunity of saying a few words to the people of Ogden, Salt Lake and Utah, for I may never have another chance. Let me thank you for the many kindnesses shown me. I have not forgotten that from the little village of Salt Lake I went into the navy, and I have always remembered during my years of service that I came from Utah. In the memory of the men who did nothing that would disgrace your state and I feel that the presence of all you people here this morning is good evidence that my efforts have been attended by a pretty fair degree of success, else you would not be here."

In San Francisco I had the pleasure and honor of being escorted by the Utah boys, the Salt Lake cadets, and I want to say that they are a fine, soldierly lot of well drilled young men. I used to be afraid of war, but since I saw them and have watched the faces of the men gathered about the station, I am not afraid any more. I don't care who the crowd is that stands waiting with this country, you are going to eat them up. Let me again thank you for the pleasure of the visit and bid you all good-bye. God bless Utah!"

Just as the admiral finished speaking a mighty cheer went up from the crowd, and in another instant the train was gone.

Before the arrival of the Salt Lake party the admiral found time to receive a couple of members of the press. He said:

"The people all the way along the route have deluged us with kindness. I am so-ing out of the service with a blaze of glory. I am a little better, but when I left the coast, of course the strain and responsibility, coupled with my illness, has at times been almost unbearable. It was with some joy that I relinquished command of the fleet last Saturday, and yet I suffered a natural pain upon taking my departure from the faithful men who have stood by me.

"My heart has always been warm for Utah. I am sorry now that I must make the trip through your state, probably for the last time, and be unable to stay, and to leave the people of Utah. I have said to every man and woman in the state, but my doctor tells me to make all haste in getting home once more. Say to the people that I am simply bursting with gratitude to the nation and to Utah for the honor that has been done me."

He was then asked as to his opinion regarding the president's request for four battleships annually and he said:

"Give the nation battleships. Instead of four every year, it should be six. We need them, and we need them bad." Admiral Evans, accompanied by his son, Lieutenant Evans, Mrs. Evans, Mrs. Marsh, his daughter, Lieutenant, and his personal physician, Dr. McDonald, left Ogden for San Francisco and that they took care to see that the admiral was comfortable.

Lieutenant Evans stated that his father had improved wonderfully since leaving San Francisco and that they took care to see that the admiral was comfortable. He said the news of the death of his grandson a short time ago had greatly affected the admiral, but that under all he had borne it wonderfully well, and "there's a good light left in him yet."

Acting Governor C. S. Tingey headed the gubernatorial party that was among the first of the party to be admitted to the admiral's presence. After the admiral's greetings, the acting governor handed a memorial to Admiral Evans, signed by Governor Cutler, in which the admiral was welcomed to the state.

That the fighting spirit follows in the path of Admiral Evans was evidenced yesterday morning, when two dentists engaged in a fist fight on Washington avenue and were placed under arrest for disturbing the peace. One was Dr. A. Zimmerman of Salt Lake and the other was Dr. E. F. Felsch of Ogden. The men were not allowed to fight, but were taken to the hospital and treated.

Dr. Zimmerman, who formerly conducted the Utah Dental parlors in this city, and who at the present time is proprietor of a place in Salt Lake, has the same name, claims that Felsch called him a vile name as he was passing him on the street, and when he presented it, Felsch used a horse's nose to pummel him. The pugilistic exhibition was on in earnest in a moment. Dr. Felsch wore his glasses at the time and a blow from Zimmerman's fist sent them flying and slightly out of the wearer's eye.

Apparently bad blood has existed between the two men for some time, and it is believed that this led up to the recent fight. At the time the two men came together Dr. Felsch was about to hurry to his office, but he was stopped by information that his little nephew had been killed by a bull and several ribs fractured. It was for this reason that Chief Felsch was so angry when he departed on his own reconnaissance.

At yesterday's session of the board of county commissioners, Samuel Dye, a veteran of the Spanish war, was elected to the office of assessor, and Van Komen of Pleasant View for $2000 a year, on account of the latter being thrown from his wagon while driving over a bad piece of line, and his horse had been compromised and settled for $100.

Favor Y. W. C. A. Branch. At a meeting of the Ogden Ministerial association held yesterday forenoon, a report was read from the committee on arrangements for establishing a Y. W. C. A. branch in Ogden, which was heartily approved. The report of Rev. G. W. McCreey regarding the action taken by the state federation was also read and approved, and the association went on record as being in favor of the action.

LEFT NORWAY TO MEET THE WOMAN

ture and a woman of intense temper. Since the facts of her many murders have come to light, she has been the little store that is not above suspicion.

On Saturday last, Emil Greening, a carpenter, and Fred Greening, his brother, who live here, and who last summer worked on the Gunness farm in Laporte, gave circumstantial details of the mysterious arrival and disappearance of a dozen different men at the Gunness place. The man quoted today in an interview is not one of the Greenings.

Emil Greening knows the history of Mrs. Gunness and believes that she is now hiding in Chicago, where she is known to have had many friends. "I believe that the Gunness house claimed three victims a month during the time I was there, but I had no knowledge of any of this business," said Greening.

"There were eleven rooms to the house and there was a large cellar. She always kept whisky, and it might be that she was using this house as a rendezvous for a shot fight. There was pistols all over the place, at least a dozen watches and numerous pocketbooks scattered about."

Pittsburg, May 11.—Pittsburg police and detectives are looking for Mrs. Belle Gunness, who is believed to be in Chicago.

A railroad conductor is his authority for believing that the woman is here. C. D. Burlingham, runner of the wheel and Pittsburg division of the Pennsylvania, says he brought the woman here his train yesterday morning. The suspect eluded the broken-down detective to watch her at the Union station.

The suspected woman boarded Burlingham's train at Alliance, Ohio, and so convinced was the conductor that she was the woman, that he telegraphed the superintendent of the local police department to send an officer to meet the train and see the woman at East Liverpool, Ohio.

Two police officers, one of whom was a detective, were sent to meet the train. The woman was seen by the officers, but she was not taken into custody. She was seen by the officers, but she was not taken into custody. She was seen by the officers, but she was not taken into custody.

Children Were Adopted. Chicago, April 11.—According to stories told today in the suburb of Austin, where Mrs. Gunness formerly lived, she was not the mother of any of the children who bore her name. Andrew Olsen, a cousin of Max Sorenson, the first husband of the woman, was making every effort to find out the truth.

It was common talk among the neighbors, and even among her relatives, that the children were not actually hers, but were adopted in their infancy.

Probable Wisconsin Victim. Waukegan, Wis., May 11.—Neighbors of Frank Riedinger, a young farmer who went to Indiana to marry a woman, who he met through a matrimonial advertisement, believe he was a victim of Mrs. Gunness. Riedinger left in 1907 and never returned.

IN POLICE CIRCLES.

E. S. Yankee, a chauffeur arrested for exceeding the speed limit, said in his own defense yesterday morning to the police that there was an officer near him who would have slowed down his machine. At best he said he was going ten or twelve miles an hour. Officers, who who made the arrest, said that his speed was easily twenty miles an hour. As the limit is ten miles an hour, Judge Diehl found him guilty and fined him $5.

The room of N. W. Wagstaff, at 127½ South Main street, was broken into Sunday night and an Elgin watch and $1 in money stolen. The burglar entered through an entrance with a skeleton key.

Nick Tese said yesterday that he was "only a little drunk." Patrolman Tom Gillespie said that Tese's cries of exultation were heard for blocks. Nick was fined $5. He smiled blandly. "I don't get it," he said. "I'm broke."

The preliminary hearing of George Lynch, charged with embezzling funds of the Elk Clog company, of which he was a director, was begun yesterday in Judge Diehl's court. Lynch is being defended by Attorney Soren X. Christensen and the prosecution is being conducted by Assistant County Attorney Aaron Myers.

George Raier, bartender for Nick Tideseo, saloonkeeper, was arrested yesterday on a warrant charging him with selling liquor on Sunday. It is charged that Raier sold a quantity of liquor to persons who visited the saloon. Tideseo, the proprietor, was arrested two weeks ago on a similar charge and is now against him is still pending in the police court.

Blanca Johnston, widow of James Johnston, yesterday brought suit against Angus M. Cannon and John W. Cannon for $2000, alleging that they had promissory note due her late husband.

For the death of her husband, C. M. Meyers, who was killed in a collision at Berby, Utah, Feb. 4, 1908, Lewis is suing the Salt Lake Route for $20,000. The case was placed on trial before Judge Diehl and a jury yesterday.

CHANGE IN FOOD. Works Wonders in Health. It is worth knowing that a change in food can cure dyspepsia. "I deem it my duty to let you know how Grape-Nuts cured me of indigestion."

"I had been troubled with it for years, until last year my doctor recommended Grape-Nuts food to be used every morning. I followed instructions and now I am entirely well."

The reason this lady was helped by the use of Grape-Nuts food is that it is digested by natural processes and therefore does not tax the stomach. The food she had been using; it also contains the elements required for building up the nervous system. If that part of the human body is in perfect working order, there can be no dyspepsia, for nervous energy represents the steam that drives the engine.

When the nervous system is run down, the machinery of the body works badly. Grape-Nuts food can be used by small children as well as adults. It is perfectly cooked and ready for instant use.

They were Vice President Charles W. Fairbanks, William J. Bryan and Governor John A. Johnson of Minnesota. Each was in a separate car and sound asleep when the train arrived here. The vice president in the Rialto, Mr. Bryan in the Allegheny and Governor Johnson in the Alverton. All efforts to see either were unavailing, the train crew refusing to take cars to them or to permit newspaper men to board the train.

The three had been on the train since it left Chicago, soon after noon, but, according to Pullman car employees, they did not meet until dinner time, when they met one table and engaged in the most pleasant social intercourse. After dinner Governor Johnson and Mr. Bryan, according to the Pullman authorities, engaged in close and earnest conversation until after 10 o'clock, when both retired.

PROVO DETENTION HOME.

Matter Is Freely Discussed at Session of Board of County Commissioners.

Provo, May 11.—The board of county commissioners met today in special session to consider the matter of a detention home for youthful delinquents, which was brought up by Judge Noon and Probation Officer Roper at a former meeting of the board. There were present Judge Noon, Superintendent of Schools Rawlings, County Clerk Gee, Probation Officer Roper, City Marshal Williams, Provo; City Marshal Butts, Lehi; City Marshal Dart, Spanish Fork; City Marshal Richmond, Payson, all of whom expressed themselves in favor of a detention home.

Probation Officer Roper reported 419 cases of juvenile delinquency since December. Of these he considered twenty should have been sent to a detention home. One thousand dollars in property had been recovered.

City Marshal Butts reported the recovery of $200 from youthful delinquents.

There was considerable discussion of ways and means, some advocating that some should be maintained by popular subscription. The matter will be considered by the board before any action is taken.

A number of questions relating to the delinquency of juveniles were considered, among them the advisability of having the state curfew law changed so as to make it more effective. At present, now, the age limit, and also means of making parents amenable to a greater extent than at present to the juvenile law.

William Lux, a young man about 22 years of age, was brought down from the state prison at Salt Lake, which was now at the Provo general hospital receiving treatment for injuries to his right foot, sustained by falling from a freight train, on which he was riding a ride, and being run over by one of the wheels. A part of the foot will have to be amputated. Lux is from New Castle, Wash.

The sporting element in Spanish Fork is enjoying a laugh over the discovery of a detective brought down from Salt Lake by the mayor to ferret out gambling and illicit liquor selling. They claim that he became intoxicated and lost $10 in a game, and when he went to make a complaint the justice of the peace told him he had paid the case the word of a "spotter" was not worth anything, anyway.

J. C. Murray and William Royle, two transient men, were fined $5 each today for vagrancy. A. W. Davis was fined $5 for being intoxicated.

Company of the Citizens Saving & Trust company of Ohio for $100,000, to secure bonds issued by the Teluride Power company, has been filed with the county recorder. The bonds are 6 per cent, thirty years, and the trust deed covers the company's holdings in Utah, Idaho and Colorado.
